RE: Dutchman's Creek Carolina Thread Trail Master Plan Addition

Dear Commissioners,

On behalf of Gaston County Parks, Recreation and Tourism I would like to express my strong support for the addition of Dutchman's Creek to the existing Carolina Thread Trail Masterplan as a designated Blueway.

Dutchman's Creek is an approximately five-mile waterway within Mount Holly's city limits that begins at the intersection of Sandy Ford Road and Dutchman's Creek and ends in the Catawba River. At Dutchman's Creek confluence with the Catawba River this future Blueway will connect to the existing 27-mile Catawba River Blueway – Lake Wylie Section.

This entire stretch of waterway is home to large rock outcroppings, river boulders, multiple bird and fish species, and the remnants of two old dams. The City of Mount Holly has recognized the importance of this waterway by completing the Dutchman's Creek Blueway Study, commissioning the Dutchman's Creek Wayfinding Study, and identifying it in the Parks and Recreation Masterplan as "one of Mount Holly's greatest assets."

The City has also invested in showcasing Dutchman's Creek through a partnership with Duke Energy to operate the Dutchman's Creek Access Area at the Catawba River, the construction of River Street Park, the construction of the Dutchman's Creek Greenway, and the future construction of the Dutchman's Creek Pedestrian Bridge that will connect the north and south banks of the creek. The Mount Holly Parks and Recreation Master Plan also recommends multiple parks along the banks of Dutchman's Creek and encourages additional river access.

These improvements bolster our recreation offerings to Gaston County residents and visitors alike, enhancing both their personal well-being and the quality of their experiences in our destination. Please add Dutchman's Creek to the existing Carolina Thread Trail Masterplan.

Sincerely,

RE: Amendment to CTT Master Plan in Gaston County to include Dutchman's Creek

Dear Mr. Smallwood,

On behalf of the Carolina Thread Trail (CTT) I am writing to express my sincere support to amend the CTT Master Plan for Gaston County to include five miles of Dutchman's Creek from Sandy Ford Road to the Catawba River in Mount Holly as a new blueway trail.

As you understand, our organization drives the vision for a regional network of trails that will connect 2.9 million people in 15 counties in North and South Carolina, including Gaston County. 435 miles of trails, greenways, and blueways already exist within the network thanks to strong partnerships throughout the region with entities like Mount Holly that work tirelessly to expand access to nature for the community.

Blueways, navigable waterbodies purposefully designated for paddling and recreation, offer unique benefits to communities and community members. Similar to trail networks, blueways promote physical and mental health through recreation, offer economic stimulus through tourism, and contribute to improved environmental quality by increasing awareness and investment in the natural surroundings. For municipalities like Mount Holly with proximate, navigable waterbodies, designating sanctioned "blueway trails," including launch points and take-outs, improves safety, increases local access and engagement in water-based outdoor recreation, and provides a novel attraction for visitors.

The proposed five-mile amendment to add Dutchman's Creek as a new blueway will only enhance the various benefits of outdoor recreation in Gaston County by expanding access to navigable waterways. Therefore, the Carolina Thread Trail strongly supports an amendment to the CTT Master Plan for Gaston County to include this section of Dutchman's Creek.

Respectfully,

Bret Baronak, Director

Re: Letter of Support – Dutchman's Creek Blueway

Dear Gaston County Board of Commissioners:

Catawba Riverkeeper, a 501c3 non-profit dedicated to preserving, protecting, and restoring the waters of the Catawba River Basin, would like to voice its support for the amendment of Dutchman's Creek in the Gaston County Blueway Masterplan from a "proposed connection" to an official blueway.

Catawba Riverkeeper recognizes the importance and value of the County's natural outdoor resources. The Gaston County Parks and Recreation Masterplan for 2017-2026 addresses the value of the County's "miles of creeks and streams" that provide a wide range of water resources. Citizens communicated the desire and need for public access to waterways throughout the public participation portion of the Master Planning process. This commitment to natural resources was one of several reasons we moved our headquarters to Gaston County in 2021.

The Gaston County Blueway Masterplan, adopted on June 22, 2021, identified Dutchman's Creek as a "proposed connection" to the Catawba River – Lake Wylie Section blueway. The City of Mount Holly has made significant investments in this five-mile waterway to make it a navigable and programmed natural resource. Improvements include debris and sedimentation removal, construction of a new public water access and pedestrian bridge, and planning for future public water access areas, safety wayfinding and public parks.

Thank you for your consideration of this amendment to the Gaston County Blueway Masterplan. Catawba Riverkeeper fully supports amending the plan and the opportunity to promote outdoor recreational and eco-tourism opportunities for citizens and visitors to Gaston County.

Thank you,
